A photograph may hold a novel, a poem, or a lie.

Gregory Sol Hyatt was a candidate for governor in 1986. He and his aides were investigated on charges of forging names on nomination papers. He was also recorded discussing politics with, and accepting a bribe from a mobster.

In 2005, Hyatt was on probation for making hostile threats. In 2007, he was disbarred from practising law for “serious crimes”, including intimidation of a witness and violating a protective order. (Wikipedia)
